Button Up! in the beautiful game platformer style. In addition to the operations of other platform jump games, we have added an unusual play mechanism. You can use a series of useful skills at will, including sewing buttons in the air to achieve stagnation, kicking other buttons to avoid or shift, and blocking dangerous lasers of the same color as yourself. Attention! Don't touch any laser different from your own color, it will burn you up! Ask HN: What is the legal matter of your choice? - davidbelos I was thinking to build a MVP and serve the product on my own. I am a U.S. citizen and will be the only employee (except software).I realized that there is almost no advice on what I should consider before deciding to start the business. ===== billconan 1\ who can sue you? You can't file a lawsuit against a company, you can only file a lawsuit against a human being, so you can just sue your own self. 2\ know about business laws in your country I'm not an lawyer, so I don't know all business laws of your country. But when I started my own business, I did many research about business laws of my country. 3\ what is the legal matter of your choice? [ ----- cimmanom Do you have any contracts with your employer, or even just an oral promise? If so, get them notarized before you commit to the venture. Even better, get a business attorney involved. If not, that's fine, though you'll want an ironclad contract to ensure your legal rights are protected. ----- Isiebert You can just buy a business license in your state from a local business license authority. Talk to a lawyer to make sure it's for what you need. Q: dynamically change button text in angular without ng-click I'm trying to change text of a button without using ng-click using angular. if I use ng-click it works fine, but I also want to do it without using ng-click. GameGear Systems Software
Title: Ultima VII: The False Prophet
Writer(s): Richard Garriott
Developer(s): Origin Systems
Publisher(s): Origin Systems
Released: 1990
1-2 Players
Genre(s): RPG, First-Person Shooter
Habros! Overview: The living dead are in the woods! In this all new, first-person, turn-based adventure game, you must lead an army of zombies to the road where your homeland lies. Start by controlling a single zombie in over 20 different paths across multiple villages. Every route you take has a completely different set of NPC villages, and every village has its own boss. Collect all the teeth, pick up the brains, and convert the villagers to undead. Think before you eat. *First-Person Turn-Based Adventure Game* *Over 20 Unique Zombie Routes* *Experience the Undead Life in a Variety of Unique NPCs' Village* *Diverse Paths and Different Mission Challenges* *Collect and Keep Food and Brains for Conversion* *Use your Brain and Brains to Cure Villagers* *Easy to Learn, but Hard to Master* Conquer the Undead World of No Man's Land! Get your filthy zombie hands on this new experience! How to play: The game is an easy to play, hard to master game for both beginners and veterans. You begin the game with an army of undead zombies. You must lead the undead army in a wide variety of journeys, each with different missions and obstacles. Each journey has a horde of NPCs, the villager towns, to conquer and create new zombies. The harder the journey the greater the rewards. You begin by controlling a single zombie with a simple zombie brain you must use to lead your army. Every journey has unique NPCs and ways to overcome them and their villages. Every path has different obstacles, missions, and strategies to conquer the village. Start by picking up a stone and smashing the first village. Collect all the bones and bring them back to the castle. After that, head to the other village. Pick up the skull and feed the bones to your zombie friends to make them stronger. Take them to the villages and help your undead army carry a mission to the end. Eat the brains and gain new abilities. Try to choose your path wisely, or you will end up in a tight spot. Habros! is now available for Steam. UPDATE 8/15/20-run by leaders of FMC, ILDs, FAO, and ACEA from La Spezia, Italy, today and tomorrow. Here are my preliminary notes as well as a few of my personal highlights. The conference begins with the first session tomorrow morning (March 18th) on industry opportunities. I'll have more on that in a future post later today. Today's agenda: Schedule (this session is before lunch) More on the first session tomorrow The second session is on "the role of the supplier" which was organized by ILD (Idea Labelings). It begins tomorrow at 12:30 (no lunch). Other attendee photos here More on the supplier session in a future post. The third session is on 12:00 Feb. 28th at FMC (Europe). The fourth session is on 12:00 Feb. 29th at ILD (FMC Americas, Europe). The fifth session is on 12:00 Feb. 30th at FAO (Europe). The final session is on 12:00 Apr. 1st at ACEA (Europe). My personal highlights from today: The mission is chock full of ILD-approved products and recommended services. Many are beginning to support supplier certification schemes like OEEs and ITIF. There was an inspiring keynote from Rome's ILD, as well as a good-sized meeting of local and regional ILDs. The site visit (or "veto") to the high-technology facility of an FMC design partner, which were scheduled to begin on the eve of ACEA and FMC conferences respectively, were mutually cancelled. No apologies from either party, but a very inspiring word at the contract to eliminate the impact of their absence on my talks. We've all learned an important lesson. (Additional keynote courtesy of my friend, Charlotte). Nice to meet David Zimbrick of the US/Mexico FMC, who will be here tomorrow morning. Delighted to meet him finally. Saw two ILDs mingle in the lounge. They may be "apart" but they are certainly allies. Saw a great discussion on it during post-IGBC meeting cocktail. John, Alan, and their guests were discussing what a good week it was for their relationship.

What's new:

Free The Hunted [32|64bit]

Welcome to the Octopus frontier! Play an old style arcade shoot 'em up. In this vintage arcade action game from 2010, you help defend your home base from strange abominations known as 'Explodipus.' You're equipped with a fast firing ink cannon, which you must use to shoot every single monster on your screen. It's survival of the fastest! Enjoy pure classic arcade action at 60fps, and oh - don't forget the retro 80's sound effects! I've recently created a new version for free for the OUYA, Xbox One, PC (Steam, GOG) and PS4. Can't stop drawing all the time so, thus, this port of my old game on OUYA platform. We'll see how well the emulated free version runs on the OUYA, compared to my old version that run so good on my Xbox One 1TB console and on Playstation 4. Note: the game engine will be cleaner/smoothen for the OUYA version, it will look much better. Here is a nice old video of the game, that would help you to get more insight on how is it play : Due to a lot of flashing lights, this game is NOT recommended for folks with any photosensitive medical conditions. Walking into an amusement arcade during the 1980's overwhelmed your senses. The audio from every arcade machine screamed out for attention, each one fighting to grab the passer by, begging for you to feed it with coins. My Nuclear Octopus is what might have happened had I been born a few years earlier and landed a job designing arcade games in 1984. It's loud, it's simple to pick up and it's tough as old badgers. The graphics are crunchy old sprites, something you might see in an old Commodore 64 game, a BBC Micro game or maybe even an 80's arcade. The logic is simple - you play for a few minutes, you get as far as you can, the game ends. Next time, you play again and try to beat your score. Somewhere along the way, the rest of the world disappears and you find yourself one with the Octopus, in some kind of harmony with the game as, for a short time at least, 100% of your focus goes into keeping back the marauders from another dimension. Lose yourself for a short time, just like we did
