PCC 7120. Anabaena sp. PCC 7120 is a filamentous heterocyst-forming cyanobacterium which synthesizes cyanobacterial polypeptides containing an unusual lipidic side chain called 2-amino-2-deoxy-D-glucose (AdoGlu). AdoGlu is synthesized by an O-methyltransferase activity on the C-6 position of a common precursor. The 3'-terminal amino acid sequence of the AdoGlu-containing cyanobacterial polypeptide has not been previously determined. By means of a combination of PCR and sequence information from nucleotide databases, a cDNA encoding an O-methyltransferase has been cloned and expressed. The nucleotide sequence of this cDNA predicts a protein with a molecular mass of about 50,000 Da and a pI of 4.65. The recombinant protein is about 20% identical to the native O-methyltransferase from Anabaena. The recombinant protein contains the minimum amino acid sequence necessary to express a methyltransferase activity. The cloning of this cDNA provides the first step towards the identification of the cyanobacterial AdoGlu-containing polypeptide and offers new opportunities to investigate the role of O-methylated molecules in cyanobacterial polypeptides.

"In this war, in this present time, I will fight for my life and for my beliefs. I am fighting for the future of our country, the future of my children, for all people. I will fight for those who cannot fight for themselves, for all men in all times. I will fight for the law that makes it possible for a man to be judged by his peers, that makes it possible for every man to stand equal before the bar of justice, that lets a murderer take his life while there is still time to set him free. I will fight for those whom no other men will help, the weak and the poor, the defenseless and the oppressed."

1914 Summer Olympics The 1914 Summer Olympics, officially known as the Games of the IV Olympiad (,), was an international multi-sport event held in Athens, Greece from July 14 to August 7, 1914. A total of 3,960 athletes representing 29 nations competed in the multi-sport event, an increase of 50% over the 1912 Games. The Games also marked the first Summer Olympics to be held in Europe, as the Summer Games had previously been held in the
