Festo .'Court upholds part-time officers' In his judgement Mr Justice Paul Sloan ruled that the role of a part-time probation officer was not the same as that of a full-time probation officer and that therefore the full-time status was not subject to collective bargaining. He upheld the part-time role on the grounds that, "in terms of the probation system, there are different reasons for the existence of part-time work" and that "the underlying purpose of the part-time work is not to deprive those officers of pay". The Judge stressed the need for a "fair" settlement of the issues and went on to say that the matter had been handled in a "reasonable" manner and that this "should be seen as an example to all other employers." The Judge decided to go ahead with
